

We are a few days to the onset of the much-awaited long rains. The weatherman has issued a warning that the rains may be below average. This is disheartening news after a period of prolonged drought, but the encouraging bit, there will be some rain. The rains may be delayed, may fall over a short period, and there might be some flash floods in some regions, but one thing is sure.