

What you need to know: Local innovations are the right response to the growing dominance by multinationals. With the right policy and support, this country can churn out its own multi-billion-shilling techpreneurs and the benefits will trickle down.